"The phantom"

Bruce,

This is from your (1) Friendly school-skipper (2) Big Boy (3) Soupie (4) one of Yirr's grammar graspers (5) Culture Vulture, etc. How we've managed to survive 2 years of Szetela and one LONG year of young beats me, but we did. I'll never forget the Sex Life of a Twig and study along with Miss Regina. Maybe I can get you some more forged passes from the band room so you can show off on your guitar while I pluck along on my banjo or ukelele. Lots of luck at U of Hartford. Keep smiling and pursue your poetry writing; seriously - I hope you have lots of success and God bless you.

Always,
Sue P.

SPRINGFIELD CITY LIBRARY

Foreword

In the Space Age of 1968, "take it day by day," Mr. Montagna's famous maxim, seems to be good advice. Accordingly, in the 1968 edition of the BLUE AND WHITE, the staff has tried to depict the day by day life of the students at Classical High School.

Almost directly across the street from Classical High School stands the statue of Deacon Samuel Chapin, whose image is the symbol of the Springfield Public School System. His figure appears also on our class rings, bookcovers, and posters all over the school. Deacon Samuel Chapin has therefore been chosen to appear on the cover of the BLUE AND WHITE.

Since the school year begins with the principals, counselors, secretaries, and school personnel who are with Classical students all through the year, so does the 1968 edition of the BLUE AND WHITE. With fall come the freshmen, football, and fall activities. Winter brings on awareness of the juniors, holiday preparations, clubs, and exciting winter sports. Spring is the magical season with its joys, memories, and long last looks. The story of the school year gradually unfolds, always to be locked in the pages of this 1968 edition of the BLUE AND WHITE.

"Take it day by day," advises Principal Montagna

MR. RAYMOND MONTAGNA
Principal

Every freshman who enters Classical soon finds out that the man behind the podium in the assembly hall is Principal Raymond Montagna, advising students that they will profit by life at Classical if they "take it day by day." The freshmen soon learn that they too may share in the recognition for scholastic or extracurricular achievement which Mr. Montagna enjoys according to deserving students. They also become aware of the sound advice and the helping hand which Mr. Montagna extends to all students as he encourages them to "take it day by day here at Classical."

Mr. Peterson checks Michael Beshara's excuse as Steven Hall awaits his turn.

"Now let's see if there is an opening in that class," says Mr. Comeau to Susan Posnick. He makes some changes of program before school opens in September and during the first few days of school.

The job of school administrator is a year round task. Weeks before school begins, the assistant principals are at Classical working on schedules, transcripts, and homeroom assignments. Mr. Comeau and Mr. Peterson also help to welcome new teachers and introduce them to the curriculum and routine at Classical. The assistant principals are dedicated men who work the whole year for the students at Classical.

make preparations for the 1360 students.

Mrs. Margaret L. Ramos is explaining her filing system to her aide Nancy Laino.

Always happy to meet parents, Miss Mary E. Corcoran greets Mrs. Ackerman.

Mr. Baron McDuffee counsels Elaine Blake.

Mr. Robert White is demonstrating the View Deck, a new machine to help students limit their college choices, to June Erickson.

Although she does "a little bit of everything," Mrs. Irene Norris' chief duty is to help with the transcripts.

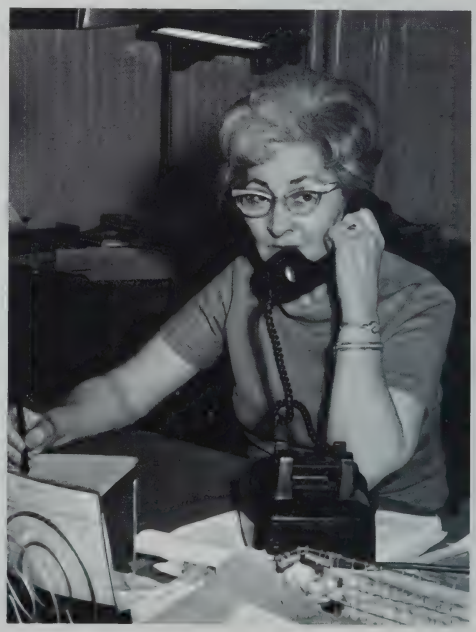

When Mrs. Shirley Cantwell, a teacher's aide, needs paper she goes to see Mrs. Rose Rubino, the secretary in charge of supplies.

Nancy Laino is eager to find out her rank in class from Mrs. Mary Basile, secretary to the guidance counselors.

Always pleasant, Mrs. Lena Lovett answers the telephone in the outer office.

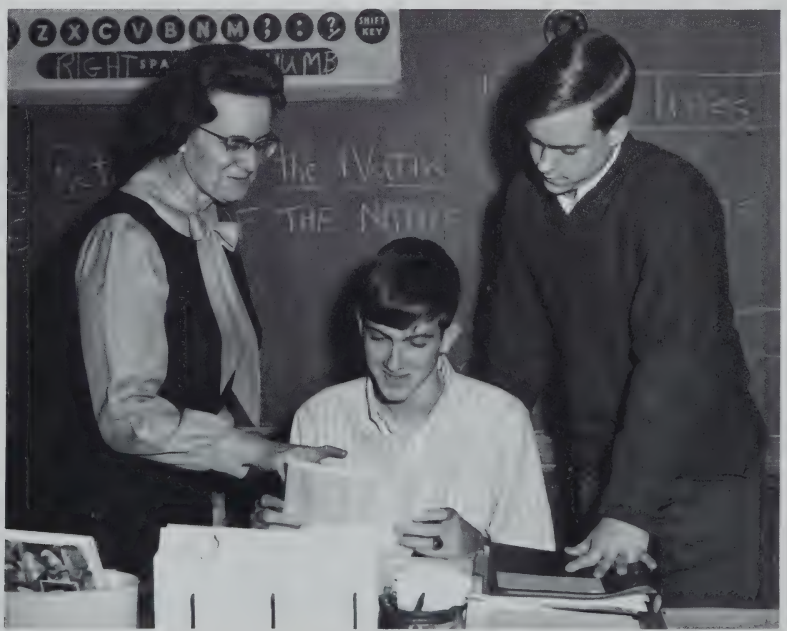

Miss Porter – all important people.

One of Mrs. Mary Sheehan's many duties is to get the daily bulletin typed, printed, and sent out by the second period.

Mrs. Rose Burns applies a bandage to the knee of Francine Bouley.

Miss Dorothy Porter, typing instructor, discusses business matters with Daniel Harrold and Brian Lambert. Included in her many duties is serving as business adviser to the Blue and White. Being the only typing teacher at Classical, Miss Porter plays a vital role in teaching Classical students how to type.

Satisfying their big appetites at noon time are Bob Levine, Gary Veratti, and Ed Hayes.

Two of the Classical cooks, Camille Avanti and Blanche Zarlengo, are busy preparing lunch for a hungry crowd.

Vincent Rinaldi, one of our custodians, regulates the boilers to make sure we have plenty of heat.

Keeping the boilers clean is one of the most important jobs of the custodians.

Miss Christine Sauer and Mrs. Mary Erard prepared a unit on creative reading with their classes. Their students read a series of short stories and expressed creatively some aspect of one story that had particular meaning for them. Some students chose to express themselves by composing music or by taping a combination of musical pieces to effect a desired mood. Mrs. Erard made a colorful display of the work of those students who chose to express themselves by drawing or painting.

Miss Almeda King, Charles Mitchell, Beverly Roberts, Christopher Hourihan, and William McCarthy are amused as they listen to Brian Santaniello read his directions to Veronica Diaz: "How to Eat Spaghetti Properly." With this assignment, Miss King is teaching her class to give directions clearly, hoping that it will help them to express themselves precisely and concisely in other forms of written and spoken communication.

"Creative writers should function like loaded cameras. Reproduce what you see in the picture," suggests Mrs. Mabel Morrill to her Creative Writing class. Taking careful notes on the pictures are Karen Pierce, Douglas Black, and Nancy Grimaldi. Matthew Levin is conferring with Mrs. Morrill. Two of the resulting poetry-pictures won honors in a poetry contest.

of Studying English

Miss Ruth Dickerman, chairman of the English department, advises her speech class "to hear yourselves as others hear you." Charles Yates is shown here tape recording his speech in order that he may play it back and analyze for himself how he sounds to others.

Mr. Melvin Grant is reviewing the play, Twelve Angry Women, with Elaine Radwanski, Chriss Schubach, and Matthew Levin, members of his drama class.

Mr. Francis Girr, who is in charge of the bookroom, is helping Mrs. Jean Bogan select texts for her classes.

Mr. Neil Yesu, Mr. Richard Pervonga, Mr. Lewis Tenczar, and Miss Teresa Regina take advantage of the English department office to prepare lessons for their classes.

Mr. Raymond Lussier, Miss Irene Meunier, and Miss Irene Rouillard prepare the language lab for an incoming class.

Dr. Phillip Miller enjoys a few light moments during one of his Hebrew classes.

a three year language sequence

Mr. Francis Smith and Mr. Robert Curley confer on Latin principles as an interested class looks on.

Mr. David Douglass, who teaches French and Spanish, speaks before a group of attentive parents on Parents' Night.

Miss Mary McCarthy discusses Spanish culture with Patricia Siuda, Cheryl Midwood, and Michelle Kudisch. The students are impressed with a black lace mantilla and a tortoise shell comb.

Miss Caroline Accorsi, Mrs. Janice Clement, and Miss Teresa Boylan examine miniature wood carvings of Don Quixote, Sancho, and a Costa Rican oxcart.

Mr. William Young, chairman of the Social Studies Department, is making out a test for one of his American History classes.

The very best to you
William R. Young

Mr. Eugene Ruddeforth, a new addition to the history department, enjoys mingling with students during lunch periods. Alan Radding and Charles Demos are discussing recent political developments with Mr. Ruddeforth.

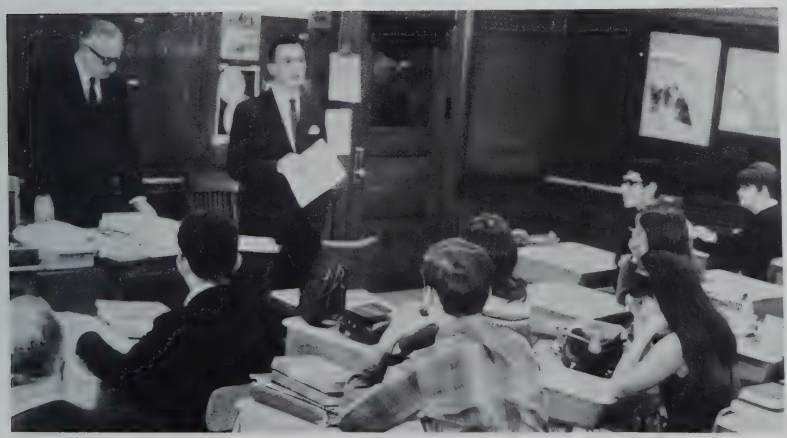

Karl Sanders is assisting Mrs. Barbara Bowen in posting material compiled in a study by Mrs. Bowen's economics classes on a recent Magazine Publishers' Association advertising campaign. The campaign is aimed at preventing further government regulation of business practices. Mitch Markman is examining the display.

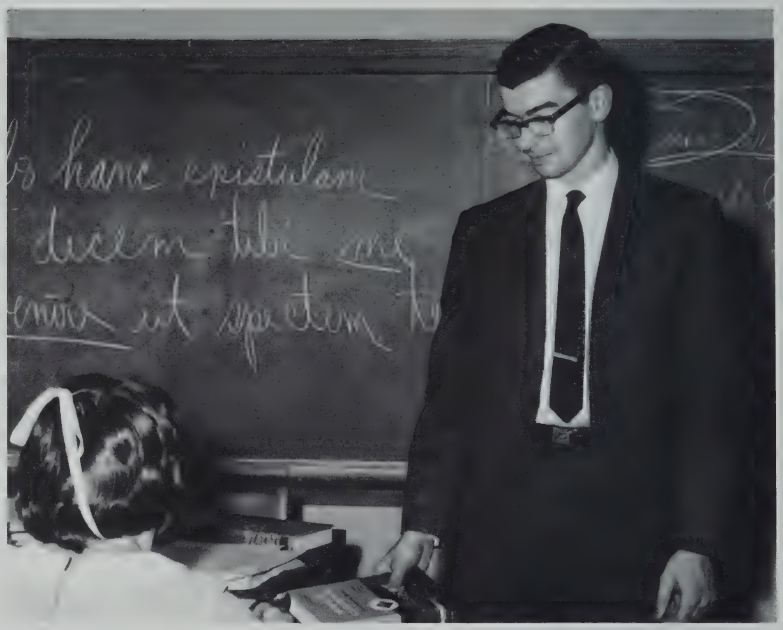

Mr. Daniel Meder imparts the subjects of American History, World History, and American Government to his avid students. Besides solving the problems of the world, Mr. Meder is in charge of the Boys' Patrol.

Miss Mary K. Morris teaches American History and Problems of Democracy. Miss Morris is also adviser to the Future Teachers' Club. She enjoys music, art, and reading literature.

Mr. Milton Corbin, who teaches both American History and Problems of Democracy, employs the new methods of teaching in the classroom. During a typical school year, over one hundred speakers lecture his classes. Mr. Paul Akerman and William Sullivan here hold a mock city council meeting.

Mr. Peck passes out books to his freshmen class as they start the first of the three years of required math.

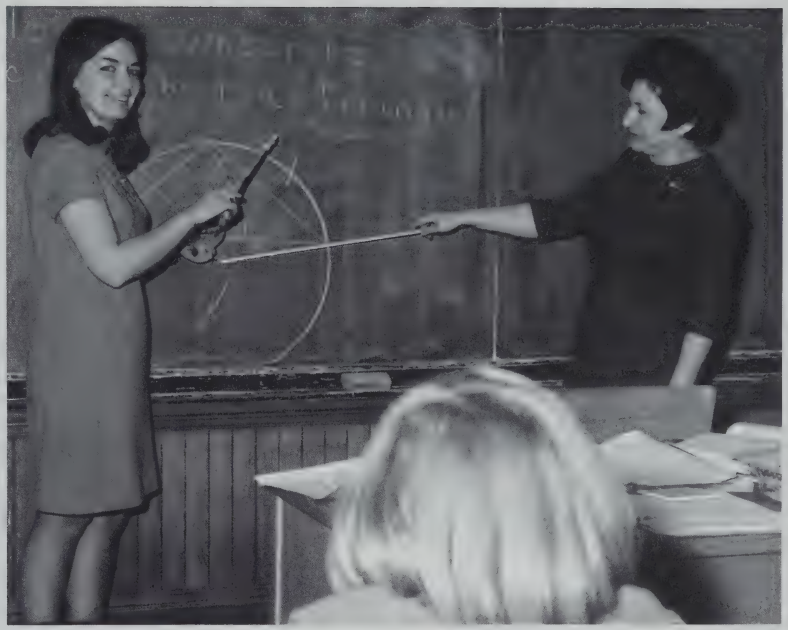

Visualizing the geometric properties of a sphere helps the students to comprehend them easier. Mr. Pare shows his class the symmetry of a point in the center of a sphere.

"Hey, this problem's kind of cute," says Mr. Wessman to Mr. Stevens.

Mrs. Bale shows that math teachers are not infallible as she points out to Miss Hart where the center of the circle should be.

The slide rule can be helpful in doing many of the complicated calculations needed to solve intricate math problems. Mrs. Beverley shows Mr. Sullivan a practical way to teach the technique of the slide rule.

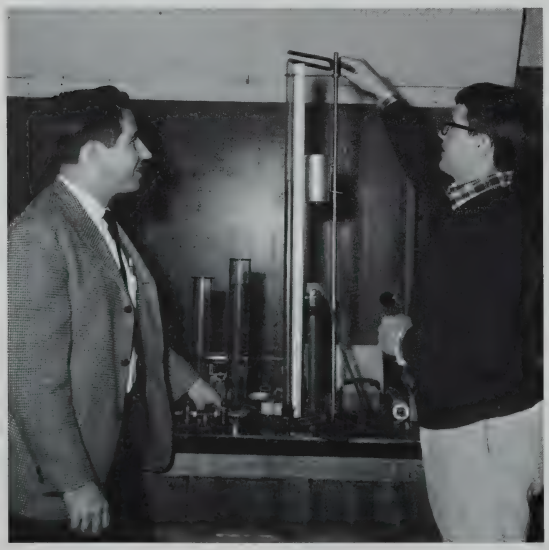

Mr. Francis Lamoureux assists Jim Smith and Bob Cohen in an experiment to produce hydrogen from an acid and a metal.

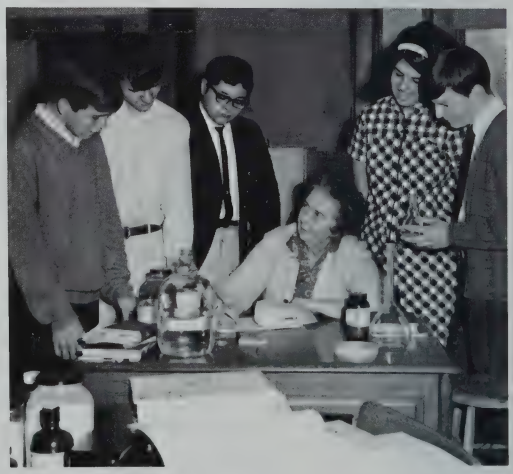

Mr. Howard Lynch helps Judy Spagnolo and Bruce Hambro with some of their problems.

Mr. Edward Lundrigan watches as Richard Thatcher performs an experiment dealing with sound-wave resonance.

Mrs. Beulah Towne interprets the results of an experiment for Steve Hall, Johnathan George, Alfred Celetti, Debra Tanen, and Paul Kabb.

During school hours Mr. Donald Vaughan is either teaching physical education or instructing students in classroom driver education. He is a coach of several extra-curricular activities as well as intramural basketball, soccer, and track.

Mr. Vaughan enjoys working with the boys on the soccer team. Michael Doyle is completing his warm-ups before practice.

Mr. Philip Hart watches and gives Ken Whitsett tips on his punting technique.

Aside from teaching physical education, Mr. Philip Hart also coaches the Classical football, basketball, and golf teams.

With Fall Come . . .

Five hundred and four freshmen

Mr. Smith, Mrs. Bogan, Mr. Curley, and Mrs. Bowen seem to enjoy serving in the capacity of advisers for the Class of 1970.

As the class of 1970 walked into the busy halls of Classical for the first time on September 6, 1967, everyone, could see an enthusiastic, ambitious group. It was obvious that they were willing and ready to learn and to live up to the Classical standards. They were ready to support wholeheartedly the athletic teams, all sorts of class projects, and many other events that make a successful year.

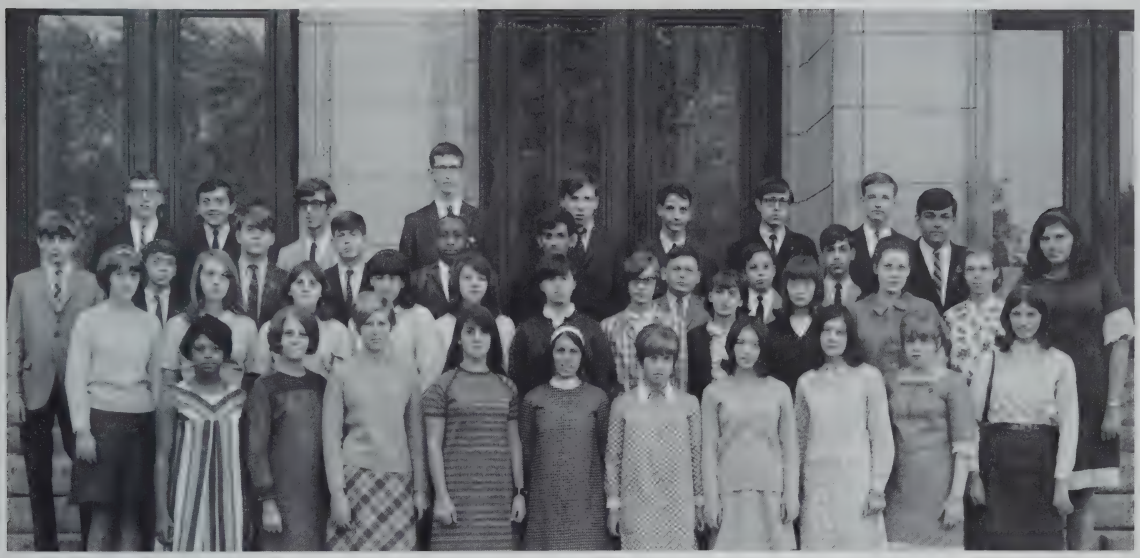

On November 17, 1967 the Class of 1970 elected as their leaders: President Peter Smith, Vice President Marcia Stahl, Secretary Linda Stringham, Treasurer Pamela Lake, and Member-at-Large George Karamallis. As their Student Government representatives they elected Marcia Balicki, Diane Doyle, Gregory Govoni, Kristen Larson, Michele Mullin, Christine Nicholson, and Mark Weinberg.

A most successful representation in the Student Treasury Drive, which meant that a great majority of freshmen filled the stands at athletic events cheering wildly. The freshmen worked hard scholastically resulting in a good many honor students. Vacancies in many school clubs and activities quickly filled with many interested freshmen who displayed talents in the Carousel, art classes, the band, and the chorus. The freshmen have found their first year at Classical very rewarding.

Looking forward to leading the Class of 1970 in its first year at Classical are Secretary Linda Stringham, President Peter Smith, Treasurer Pamela Lake, and Member at Large George Karamallis.

January 29, 1968:

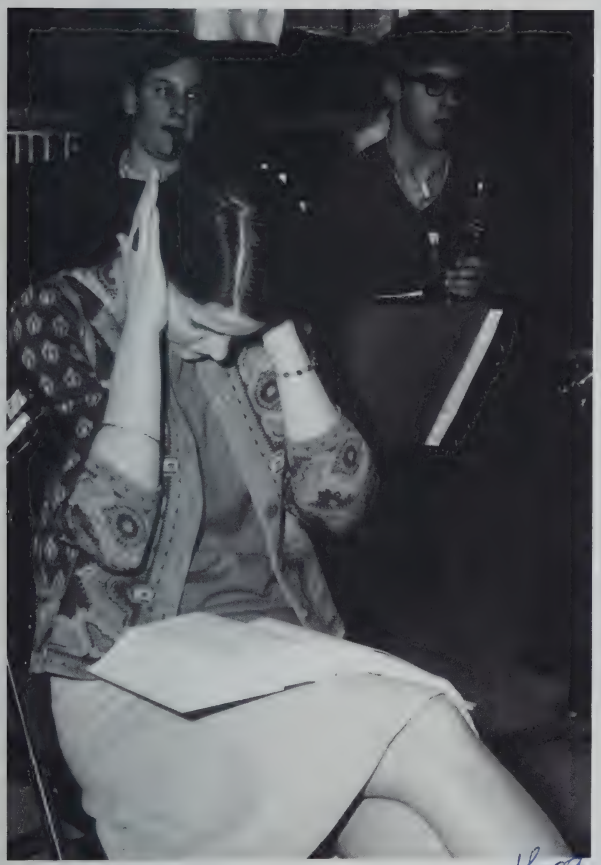

January 29, 1968 was a never-to-be-forgotten day in the history of Classical High School. On this memorable date, the daily schedule of the school was changed: all classes started one-half hour earlier! This meant that school started at 7:55! Despite the early hour, these brave Classicalites managed to arrive at school promptly.

It takes a while to get used to having a class at 8 o'clock in the morning! These freshman seem to be making the adjustment well.

Who Can Forget It?

Still not used to the new schedule, Ellen Vickers tries to get in a bit of last-minute studying in the bandroom.

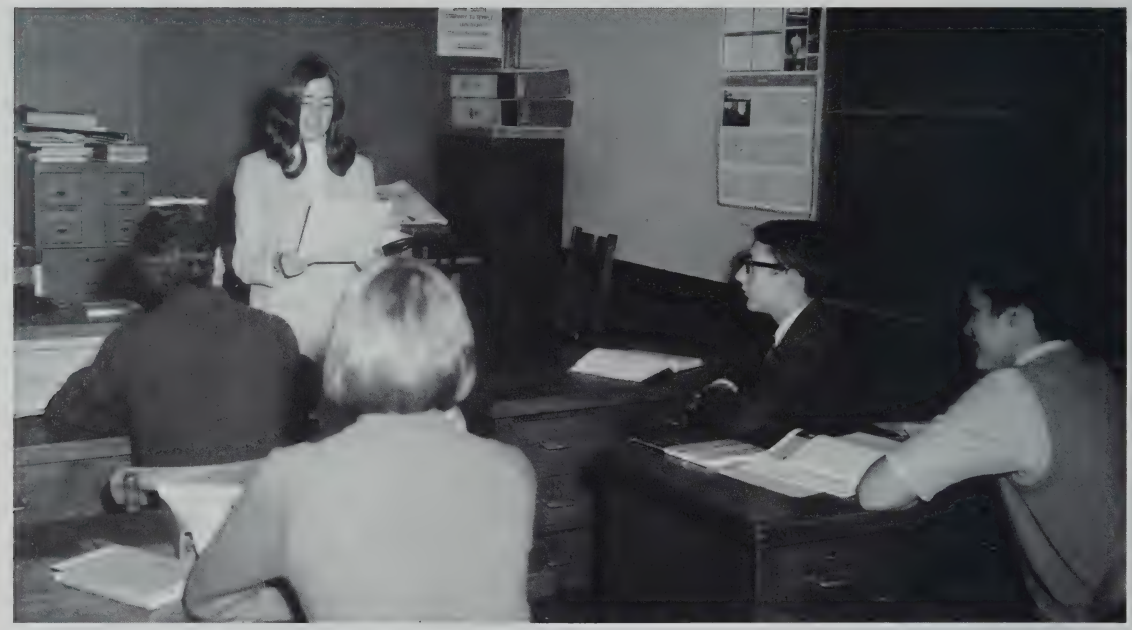

"I don't think you're really sick!" says Mrs. Burns to Mike Goldman and Eric Stahl. "Are you sure it isn't just fatigue?"

Good luck in college and with your diet and all your other worthy endevors. Sincerely Paul R.

Mid-way through this tedious day, Classicalites gather for an assembly. Note the happy faces. Could it be that they've adjusted to the new schedule in just a few hours?

Marsha Kennerson informs students Ed Hayes, Jean Travis, Paul Chapin and Mark Powell of the latest developments in Student Government.

Trying to assure the smooth flow of voters, Robert Young and Carol Zucchi check the attendance lists at the freshmen elections.

Working to fulfill its goal of serving the student body, Student Government continued to discuss and act on issues affecting the school. Its services included running the Student Treasury drive, organizing dances, holding Student of the Month elections and managing the school store.

In one of its first actions, Student Government, after hearing from the Senate President, reconsidered its refusal to abolish the class dues requirement for voting. The decision was made to change the rule and then, by means of a referendum, check student opinion. The overwhelming support given the move demonstrated the group's ability to judge the desires of the constituents.

The class elections themselves continued to become more complicated as the number of Classicalites increased. To add to Student Government's troubles was the presence of a homeroom in 323. Somehow the problems were worked out, and the elections were still run on schedule.

During the year, Student Government also handled a wide variety of issues. An "open-door" policy for seniors, a pass-fail grade, and the changing of mid-year and final exam schedules were issues discussed. Although all these had to be tabled due to administrative problems, a ski club was organized.

The Student Treasury, run by Student Government, provides the economic backbone for many school organizations. The membership drive included bulletin notices and an assemble to inform the student body of the advantages of S.T. The final results were 78% of the seniors, 72% of the juniors, 74% of the freshmen, and 74% of the entire school had joined.

Brian Lambert and Joan DiSanti show where they think the arrows should point. Unfortunately, the actual result was seventy-four percent.

Student assistants perform

Smooth assemblies are primarily the concern of the Stage Crew. Paul Case, Al Pryor, and Dan Aranow work backstage during an assembly.

The Stage Crew, under the direction of Mr. Lussier, is responsible for all technical details at all assemblies. Some of the duties include: operating lights, changing scenery, and working the curtains. They also are responsible for producing the major part of the Carousel and do this on their own time. Meetings are held before all assemblies. Members of the Stage Crew include: Chief operator Paul Case, Al Pryor, Don Aranow, Phil Eddy, Irving Potter, Bill Jackson, and Steve Finson.

Under the direction of Mr. Pare, the AVA is responsible for operating projectors at Classical. The purpose of the AVA is to "train and coordinate in providing operators for all AVA equipment." The senior members include: James Rosa, Peter Betts, Louis Malvezzi, Thomas Moriarty, Bruce Retchin, William Brickhouse, Mark Friedenberg, and Carl Gardner.

duties for busy teachers

Miss Isabelle Brown teaches the library aides their duties. Miss Brown is instructing Donald Peters and Michelle St. Jean how to check in and discharge books while Pamela Rousseau and Nancy Galliagher use the card catalog. The aides made it possible to give service which would not be possible otherwise. The apprentices do the library circulation work, record keeping, while the experienced aides do such things as important reference work and cataloguing.

The Chem Lab Aides assist Mrs. Towne and Mr. Lamoureaux with their chemistry classes. Elaine Radwanski, Tom Zollo, Andrea Hale, and Karen Wawrzonek help prepare for an upcoming experiment with chemical equilibrium. To become a lab aide the students show that they possess a willingness to work along with sufficient skill in the techniques of chemistry.

Majorettes and cheerleaders

After perfecting their many routines, Majorettes Debbie Haas, Eileen Smith, Pam Perrigo, Co-Captain Kathy Plourd, Captain Bonnie Baird, Linda Zelenski, Cherelyn Leech, Jackie Hall, and Gretchen Holbrook were ready to march in parades, and lead the band down football field.

Under the leadership of Captain Carla Montori and Co-captain Sherry-Lee Burrell, the Cheering squad is made up of Diane Blake, Carolyn Riddle, Gail Rosso, Marilyn Alexander, Carol Zucchi, Gail Slepchuck, Debra Stirlacci, Pam Kowalec, Elizabeth Stellman, and Donna Agan. The cheerleaders spent many hours each week perfecting their cheers. Then, full of spirit and enthusiasm, they led Classicalites at football, basketball, hockey, and soccer games as well as putting on several pep rallies.

"If anyone had told me we were going to remain undefeated a few weeks ago, I would have told him he was crazy," remarked Coach Phil Hart after his team's 32-6 victory over Minnechaug, a victory giving Classical its second undefeated season in four years. Marty Jacque, Peter Jaskievic, Mike Evans, Steve Stratos, Charley Rucks, and Ed Robinson made up a strong defensive secondary. Behind the blocking of fine offensive line men such as John Haggerty and Alex Lagunowich, diminutive halfback Garry Parks scampered for many crucial yards. Halfback Ed Robinson and fullback Ken Whitsett provided power in the backfield. Steve Stratos filled in for the injured Rand Alexander, completing 16 of 23 passes for the season.

In cross country, the sport in which the team with the least number of points wins, Dave Latham has starred for Classical. In the regional meet at UMass, Dave placed fifteenth in a pack of 156 runners, while Classical placed fourteenth out of 22 teams.

The Classical harriers began their season with a bang by overcoming Technical with a score of 20-42. This win, along with defeats handed to Longmeadow, Chicopee, and a slaughtering 18-40 defeat dealt to Cathredral brought the Bulldogs to the end of their season. The team's 4-6 record, although not impressive at a glance, is remarkable considering the fact that the cross country team has never had four wins in its existence.

Parents attend classes

Miss King acquaints parents on Open House night with her methods and plans for teaching English.

One of the four annual events of the PTSA was Open House on November 15. Parents had the opportunity to visit their children's classes and learn about the curriculum. The PTSA also sponsors the spring concert, a food sale, and a college night. The PTSA awards annually numerous scholarships to outstanding Classical seniors.

At the National Honor Society induction assembly held during American Education Week, Dr. Clarence I. Chatto, former principal of Classical High School, is delivering his address. Elaine Radwanski, secretary of NHS, and its president, Lee Kaplan, as well as Mr. Montagna and orchestra members are listening. All seniors having achieved a 3.5 academic average at the end of their junior year are eligible to be inducted into the William C. Hill Chapter of the National Honor Society.

After the assembly Miss Fern Zipse congratulates Dr. Chatto. In the background Mr. Warren Amerman has just expressed his appreciation of the musical selections to Mr. Montagna.

FUTURE TEACHERS' CLUB

The Clarence I. Chatto Future Teachers' Club under the guidance of advisers Miss Morris and Miss Corcoran and the leadership of President Iris Zarefsky has acquainted its members with the various aspects of the teaching profession. Sometimes, members who have taken trips to colleges or have been involved in an interesting educational experience speak to the club.

FUTURE NURSES' CLUB

Informing girls about various health fields is the major aim of the Future Nurses' Club. Throughout the year, the girls get together on the first Monday of the month to take part in the varied programs scheduled by adviser Mrs. Provost and the officers. The members showed films on the subjects of "The Professional Nurse" and "Anesthesiology." Some subjects discussed this year were medical technology, the Peace Corps, and the Fitchburg College of Nursing. In May there was a field trip to the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston.

Winter brings an awareness of. . .

Staff of five are selected by

Through the careful planning of Miss McCarthy, Mr. Leclair, Mr. Stevens, and Mrs. Bale, The class of 69 has enjoyed a very successful junior year.

In September of 1966, the Junior Class entered Classical as bewildered Freshmen. Although new to the school, they adjusted quickly and soon became an important part of the school.

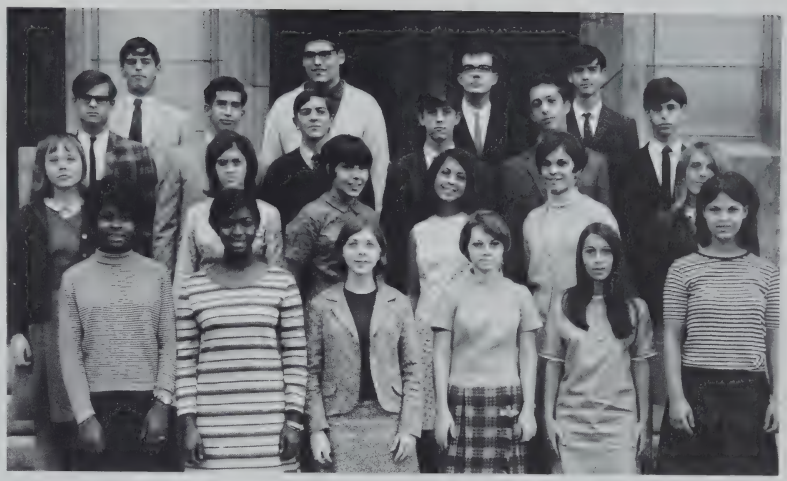

In their freshmen year, activities highlighted the year with a Bake Sale, Sweatshirt and T-shirt Sale, and a picnic. They also participated in many clubs. As Juniors they became staff members of the Blue and White, the Recorder, and the Scribe. Some have become Madrigal and Choir singers making the Christmas and Spring Concerts very successful. A great deal of responsibility is given to the Boys' and Girls' Patrol, some of whom are juniors. Many have enlivened athletic events as cheerleaders, majorettes, and band members and a number of boys have become vital to the various sports teams. The year was climaxed by a very enjoyable Junior Prom.

There is no doubt that the Class of 1969 has displayed its school spirit at all times, be it at sports events, extra-curricular activities, assemblies, and in the classroom. They have had an interesting and busy Junior year and are looking forward to next September when they will be Seniors — willing to work hard to accomplish what all other Senior Classes have done.

BLUE and WHITE HOME ROOM

A great deal of preparation and hard work is done by the Junior members of the Blue and White Staff before the final publication of the yearbook. The duties of the Juniors include writing the Freshmen and Junior sections and helping with the Administration, Activities, and Sports sections. The Junior members are Robert Tenny, Elaine Blake, Barbara Johnson, Brian Lambert, Danny Harrold, Joanne Denny, Randi Tillman, Ed Hayes, Jean Travis, and Marlene Kozicki.

Paul Case and Ed Hayes relax in the "student lounge" otherwise known as the stage crew room.

at National Honor Society tea

On December 21, Classical halls are filled with returning alumni. Richard Perry, Richard Rising, Ronnie Posner, and Lois Cohen find the first stop to register.

Once in the cafeteria Linda Brooslin and Beatrice Shell find the punch bowl a center of attraction.

The Alumni Christmas Tea, organized each year by the National Honor Society, is one of the major events of the winter season. Paid for by funds raised at an earlier bookfair, the tea is handled by committees covering decorations, refreshments and invitations.

Returning alumni, having signed the register, congregate in the cafeteria where they meet old friends and compare colleges while consuming the refreshments served by members of the Honor Society. The seniors present take the opportunity to question the alumni about college life.

Discussing the change to college life, Robert Borek and Elaine Winkler talk to Mr. Montagna.

Steven Stratos proudly receives the United States Navy Award from Commander Patrick Caine.

An Outstanding Holiday Dance

The Holiday Dance, sponsored by Student Government, was held this year on December 26, 1967 at the Highpoint Motor Inn. Decorations of miniature sleighs were in keeping with the theme of the dance, "Moonlight Sleighride."

Mark Shapiro helps his date, Shelley Greenberg, pin on her corsage before entering the dance.

and a Record-Breaking Attendance

The Queen candidates, Paula Popeo, Susan Marchese, Elizabeth Stellman, Albina Wrona, Pamela Lake, and Denise Dolvin, are anxiously awaiting for Angelo Sifakes, Student Government president, to open the sealed envelope containing the queen's name.

As excited as the candidates, the students await to hear the announcement of the queen.

Elizabeth Stellman is crowned queen of the Holiday Dance and presented a bouquet of roses from Rand Alexander, dance chairman.

On December 20, 1967, the music groups presented the Christmas Assembly. One of the highlights was an oboe solo by Elinor Hartshorn accompanied by Mr. Page at the piano.

Sing (and Play)

The active Madrigal Singers began their season with a Thanksgiving Day Assembly performance, under the direction of a fellow student, John Kirk. Then, as the Christmas season arrived, the group gave performances both within and outside school — the Christmas Assembly and Christmas Concert both on December 20 at Classical and performances at the Trinity Methodist and the Bethesda Lutheran churches. Later in the year, Madrigal performed at Classical's annual Spring Concert.

Over the past few years the progressive Classical High School Orchestra has increased in size and activity. This year, for the first time, it had a constitution and officers. Under the direction of Mr. Kerr, the orchestra, with over forty members, performed at the Thanksgiving Day Assembly and the Christmas Assembly. The season came to a close with the group's performance at the annual Spring Concert.

During the Christmas Assembly, the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Kerr, performed for the student body. Among the pieces played were "Beethoven's I," "Suite of Seventeenth Century Dutch Tunes," and "Three Carols for Christmas."

Mary Karczmarczyk, Tom Kuzmarski, Scott Bennett, and Steve Cohen listen to Karen Wawrzonek present her arguments for debate.

The Senate, Classical's debating club, operated under a three fold program for the year. One part was the teaching and holding of formal debates. A second part of the program included such activities as the appearance of President Paul Chapin before Student Government on the class dues issue.

The third part of the Senate program was devoted to the practice of legislative procedure. Committees were organized to consider items put before the assembly. On the floor Senators used every method possible, both procedural and verbal, to pass or defeat the various items. The major events of the program were the West Springfield and AIC Model Congresses to which the Senate sent delegations. They provided the delegates practice in working in committee and general debate.

The Classical delegation to the Model Congress raise hands to vote in favor of a bill that has just been presented. They are Leon Theim, Paul Chapin, Debbie Tanen, Janice Carp, Scott Bennett, and Diane Biegel.

Pierides, Classical's literary society for girls, was founded sixty one years ago and is one of the earliest traditional clubs of the school.

At the September meeting, new members are welcomed with a tea at which the nine Muses or patronesses of the arts speak. Another autumn meeting is held at the Museum of Fine Arts, and the Museum Director, Mr. Frederick Robinson, discusses the latest exhibits.

Other club activities include the annual literary prize contest, lectures on the arts, and programs of literary games, records, and movies.

Dressed as muses are Linda Brown, Mary Karczmarczyk, Diane Malley, Elaine Radwanski, Karen Wawrzonek, and Janet Blair

At an interesting meeting of the Spanish Club Mr. Jaime Alvarez, a cultural attache, discussed his native country of Columbia, South America. The entire club found his talk extremely informative.

Members of the Latin Club, Cynara Ogle, Nick Balland, Cynthia Pine, and Susan Perry, examine a Roman Toga.

Terry Genden, Ellen Ackerman, Maxine Zwirn, and Nadine Chernick are having a discussion about Israel just before a meeting of the Hebrew Club.

Barbara Franklin, Virginia Ernst, Kathy Quinn, Susan Schiff, Cheryl Midwood, and Elizabeth Bernstein look over some French scrap books after a meeting of the French Club.

Susan Walker and Joanne Pease watch Thomas Zollo infect the sterile culture containing antibiotic tablets with bacteria to test for a cure.

David Bixby tries successfully to develop his queen's pawn opening against Alan Searleman as Roger Cant looks on.

Those interested in chess found plenty of opportunity to improve their game through practice at the weekly meetings of the chess club. A new grading system, which eliminated disagreement about position, allowed more time for chess playing. The chess team, headed by President Alan Searleman, presented a strong lineup to their opponents. Roger Cant displays the intense concentration needed to see the subtleties of the position.

IRC promotes world understanding

The International Relations Club tries to promote a better understanding of the different peoples of the world. In order to accomplish this purpose, a speaker appears before the monthly meeting and lectures on the customs and culture of foreign countries or on the relationship between the United States and the rest of the world. Speeches such as Dr. Avery's on the Far East, Dr. Driftmier's on India, and Mrs. Provost's on the study-abroad program, help to give the members a true picture of the world outside of their own boundaries.

In an effort to put the acquired understanding to use, the International Relations Club gives financial support to a thirteen year old Korean Orphan. To raise funds, a drive to sell buttons reading, "Support the Orphan." In the one day drive, ninety dollars was collected which, combined with ninety dollars from the membership dues, will provide clothing, food, medical care, and school materials.

Miss King tends to the medical needs of Mr. Douglas.

The 1967 Student-Faculty basketball game, sponsored by the senior class, proved to be one of the highlights of the 1967-1968 school-year. A fierce faculty team, led by forwards Mr. Douglas, and Mr. Lundrigan, overwhelmed the student defence to make many big tallies. The students determined to snatch the victory, played well against an older, more "mature" faculty squad. Spirited faculty cheerleaders were on hand to tend to the medical needs of the players, providing on-the-spot care for injured players. (As evidenced by the photo at right.)

Action under the boards as Al Pryor and team mate Stan Piecuch attempt to block Mr. M'Rad's shot.

The student spectators who flocked to the game in hope of seeing a hard-fought contest were not disappointed. Action off the boards was rugged, while students, Kevin Tower and Don Tucker, striving mightily to out-rebound the faculty's tenacious duo of Mr. Yesu and Mr. Sullivan.

In a furious scoring flurry during the last quarter, the faculty established a slim lead and held it to the final whistle. When the final tally was taken, the faculty had won by a single point.

"We've got the drive. That's easy to see" as Rand Alexander brings the ball down the court, aided by Steven Stratos.

The Classical Hoopsters aided by the impressive season-long performance of towering George Kastrinakis and agile Steve Stratos fought their way to a 9 and 7 record. Although suffering a heartbreaking loss to Valley League co-champion Westfield by a score of 70-69 after leading by 20 points, defending Interschool champion Classical had little difficulty in defeating its non league competition. In the tough Interschool League the Bulldogs easily beat Trade twice but suffered two narrow losses to a well-rounded Commerce team. In the second Tech game, a Tiger layup with 3 seconds remaining won the game for Tech. A Kastrinakis jumper had just tied the score at 54 all. Classical gained revenge against its 4th quarter loss to Cathedral with a resounding 69-55 win with special praise to the whole team for the team work shown throughout the game. In the final game a narrow 52-49 defeat to Agawam ended most hopes for a tourney bid.

The good aim of "giant" George Kastrinakis adds two points to Classical's score. The Spartans look aghast as the shot is completed.

The score stands at Classical 8, East Longmeadow 7. The moment is tense as Steven Stratos dribbles down the Field House floor, defying the Spartan defense.

The swimming team enjoyed its finest season in years, copping its third consecutive city championship. The Classical mermen snatched a victory from the defending league champions, the Chicopee High Pacers. In meets with East Longmeadow and Minnechaug, the Bulldogs were "touched out" in the final relay. The last meet of the year pitted Classical against Chicopee Comprehensive. From the first relay on, there was no doubt that intensive practice by Classical mermen paid off — a winning.

John Kroll and Bob Young are ready to take off for a medley relay. Ready to get out of the pool is Mark Goldstein.

Grapplers and bowlers show strong potential.

The wrestling team, because of adverse conditions such as poor facilities and a shortage of manpower in certain weight divisions, started the season very slowly. They did, however, come back to smash Trade with a mid-season 28-22 victory. This victory raised the hopes of the team and gave it the incentive needed to improve the record.

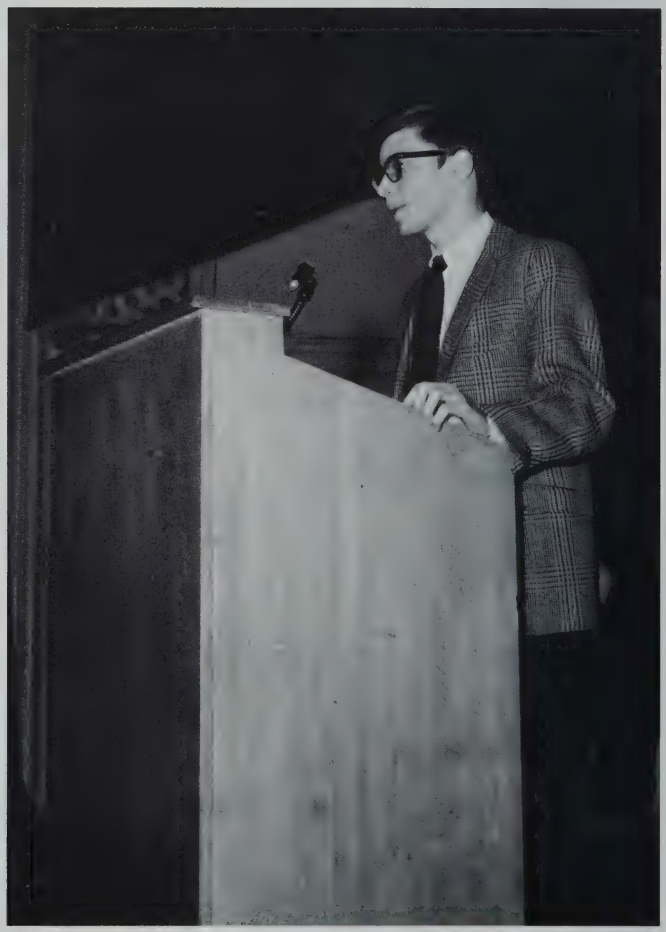

The Classical Kegglers started the season with a bang by handing losses to both the Tech and Commerce bowling teams. These wins set the stage for the rest of the season as the Bulldogs rolled over city competition.

Paul Kabb tries for a strike as the bowling team looks on.

On Friday, February 16, 1968 the juniors gathered in the assembly hall to watch fifteen members of their class become inducted into the William C. Hill Chapter of the National Honor Society. Seated on the stage waiting to address the assembly are Principal Montagna, Mayor Freedman, Sherry Burrell (Secretary of the Honor Society), and Henry Green (President of the Honor Society).

Henry Green speaks to the assembly about the Honor Society. He says that the purpose of the organization is "to create an enthusiasm for scholarship and to give due recognition to honor students of Classical High School." to be eligible for membership, juniors must have a 3.75 average.

in the Honor Society.

The inductees recite the membership pledge of the Honor Society with Henry Green. They promise to maintain "lofty standards of Character, Scholarship, Leadership, and Service." From left to right they are Susan Partyka, Shelley Parker, Frank Smist, Cheryl Midwood, Rhea Kalman, Michael Greenspan, Robin Freedman, Andrew Blumberg, Diane Cormier, Frederick Allen, and Jannie Broad.

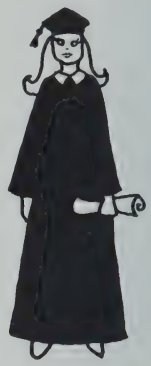

Mr. Montagna congratulates Cheryl Midwood for achieving membership in the Honor Society.

The assembly concludes with a musical selection by the Madrigal Singers. In the first row are Marsha Kenerson, Ellen Vickers, Marc Allinson, Linda Totten, Susan DeBarger, Gregory Gilfoil, Karen Pierce, and Elizabeth Balise. In the second row are John Stuckenbruck, Hope Moser, William Gourlie, Susan Finch, John Kirk, Sally Geisel, and Douglas Winterlee.

Spring is the magical season . . .

With Member-at-large Eileen Smith, Treasurer Kathryn Slora, Secretary Hope Moser, and Vice-President Carol Goodman, President Eric Stahl conducts a class meeting.

Classmates:

As we, the Class of 1968, leave Classical High School, each one of us shall have passed through the doors of an educational institution rich in heritage and dedicated service. After graduation, some of us will continue our education at the college level. Others will elect to enter more immediate programs of vocational training. All of us in some way will be using educational experiences we have gained from being a part of Classical.

Our class has shown its superiority in academic accomplishment as well as in extra-curricular achievement. We have recognized many members of the class for their musical talent. We have cheered the athletic prowess of other classmates. As fellow citizens we must earnestly attempt to continue to learn and grow together. We owe this promise of achievement to our faculty who has shown us the merits of individuality and the importance of cooperation.

I am honored to have served as president during our freshman and senior years, and join with the other officers in wishing each of you success and happiness in life.

have made this a memorable year.

Congratulations to the Class of 1968 on an outstanding record of achievement over the past three years.

I hope your future years will be bright with promise and rich in fulfillment.

Good bye and good luck!
Daniel Meder

Today's lesson for tomorrow's life:

Fight for your beliefs
Attain your highest level
Refuse to be small Enjoy people
Welcome friends
Encourage sincerity
Laugh
Love

Patricia Hart

Congratulations to the Class of '68

It has indeed been my privilege to have been associated with such a wonderful group of young people. As you enter into the next phase of your education, you will be confronted with many problems of a complex nature. We are living in a period of very rapid change, and many of our traditional concepts are being challenged. I hope that we at Classical have done our share in helping you face these challenges in a responsible and perceiving manner.

You will never master all the knowledge in the world, or even in your chosen field, but if you can master the art of getting along with your fellow man, and establishing a peaceful and just world, consider yourself a giant among men.

Armen Jermakian

To the members of the Class of 1968, I offer my fondest best wishes! Certainly over the past three years a metamorphosis has occurred. You entered Classical High School as uncertain freshmen striving for knowledge. You leave here as strong and knowledgeable seniors. It is hoped that your three years association will have molded tolerant, understanding and sincere adults. You go out into a world full of opportunity and challenge. With your background, enthusiasm, and talent, certainly the opportunities will be fulfilled and the challenges will be met. May you set your goals and standards high, and ever strive towards these ideal perfections. May you never falter or fail, and if you do, may you try twice as hard to redress yourself.

Erline Laramee

The advisers for the class of '68 during the past three years have been Miss Patricia Hart, Chairman Daniel Meder, Mr. Armen Jermakian, and Miss Erline Larame.

At the beginning of the year, seniors, overwhelmed by so many students, try to make their way through the halls.

with higher goals

Seniors Lisa Vinick, Sandra Zajac, Cindy Walpurgis, Sue Viner, Tom Zollo, Doug Winterle, June Szafranski, Linda Totten, Ellen Sullivan, Lois Spatz, and Bev Tourigny demonstrate their school spirit at a rally.

The highlight of the junior year for the Class of 1968 was their Junior Prom. It was held at the Springfield Elk's Hall on April 29, 1967. The theme was "Misty". A well-known band, Joe Premont and the Paramonts, provided the music for the night.

Striving for a record time, the crew forcefully strokes through the waters of the Connecticut River.

The Bulldog oarsmen, led by captain Al Klibanoff, enjoyed a highly successful season. In one disappointing, but very exciting race with arch rival Technical, the Classical shell led for most of the race. A win for the Bulldogs was certain when Tech pulled up to our leading shell and began to lock oars with it. Completely thrown off their stroke pattern, the Bulldogs were unable to pull together before Tech pulled ahead to win the race. One consolation in the race, though, was that the Classical oarsmen left Roosevelt High School of New York State far behind on the Connecticut River.

Trackmen raise dust.

Under the leadership of senior tri-captains Leroy Claybourne, Gary Gaspar, and Steve Holuk, the trackmen slashed their way to fourth place in Western Mass. competition. A hard-fought contest against Cathedral was decided in the final relay when anchor man Norman Degenais legged it in ahead of his Cathedral counterpart. George Kastrinakis performed well in the shotput and javelin. Ron Jermakian accumulated points in the discus and javelin. Bob Young and Walter Mayo kept in shape competing in the most spectacular of track events, the pole vault.

"Grrr," cries Bulldog trackmen Eric Stahl as he leaps over the hurdles.

Late season rally gives

After dropping four of their first five games, the 1967 Classical baseball team reversed the trend and finished the season with eight wins. Among the hapless of Classical's late season onslaught was arch-rival Longmeadow. A Classical batting spree in the fourth inning and decisive strike-outs late in the game by relief pitcher Mike Hambro clinched it for the Bulldogs. Pitchers Pete Deschense and Steve Marino turned in consistently good performances throughout the season. Senior Steve Marino, a starting varsity pitcher since his freshman year, defeated East Longmeadow three consecutive times. Bob Zanolli was tops in the batting department with a remarkable .357 batting average for the year.

Short stop Bill Brown hurls the ball to first base for an out.

Good golfing takes a great amount of skill and accuracy. The 1967 members of the golf team are (front) Thomas Andros, Mitchell Markman, David Garber; (back) Coach Jermakian, Bill Edwards, Paul Kabb, Paul Theroux, and Patrick Connolly.

The golf team, led by veteran varsity man Andy Pradella, experienced a fair season ending the year with a record of 3 wins and 4 losses. In their first contest the golfers were unfortunately defeated by Technical with a score of 12½-5½. This match brewed up enough determination to carry them to victory in the next meet. The Bulldogs crushed the Beavers by the fantastic score of 17-1. The rest of the season followed this same course of winning then losing. While playing their matches, though, the golfers built themselves into a strong team.

Have a Swinging Season.

The outstanding Classical tennis team, with its two year undefeated 27-0 record, has brought to Classical not only the city championship but also the honor of being the Western Massachusetts championship team. An unexpected 4 to 1 defeat was dealt to the Bulldogs by Newton High School during competition at the State Tournament. This loss killed Classical's hopes for a state championship, but Tom Suher made a good showing as he pulled through in his contest to emerge State Singles Champion.

Hoping to catch his opponent off-guard, Thomas Suher contemplates his famous serve.

The Recorder attempts

In order to review journalistic techniques, old Recorder issues are distributed to staff members, Mike Goldman, Fred Dolgin, Alan Rosen, Kay White, Diane Cormier, Linda Raciborski, Liz Stellman, and Jim Gold.

Very important to the quality and success of the Recorder, is the review of old issues by Mr. Brady with the entire staff.

About to begin its 89th year of publication, the Classical Recorder, under the direction of Mr. Brady, opens this year with an enlarged staff. Throughout this year, the students have learned "journalistic principles through actual publication of this monthly paper." The junior staff includes: Diane Cormier, Fred Dolgin, Robin Freedman, Brad Goff, Jonathan Greenberg, Robert Levine, Linda Raciborski, Karen Richards, Rachel Skvirsky, and Kay White.

Seniors Hillary Charney, Karen Ruddeforth, and Henry Green give story assignments to junior reporters Robert Levine and Rachel Skvirsky.

to get the story

"This is the way this story should be developed," advises Mr. Brady to junior reporters Brad Goff, Robin Freedman, Karen Richards, and Jonathan Greenberg.

Handbook staff members Nancy Grimaldi, Louis Cuzzone, and Paulette Nichols distribute the freshman guide to freshmen Walter Slepchuk and Paul Skowronsky.

Under the direction of Miss Mills, the members of the 11h class work afternoons in Room 222 in order to publish the Scribe, a literary magazine. All students at Classical High School may submit contributions. A Scribe Supplement is published in June and includes a selection of poems and essays not printed in the Scribe.

Revised biennially, the Classical Handbook is presented to incoming freshmen to acquaint them with school rules, organizations, and athletic teams. Under the direction of Mrs. Morrill the staff is chosen for their responsibility, determination, and overall personality. Meetings are held in Room 326 at 2:50 each Monday during handbook preparation.

Co-Editors Danny Harrold and Cheryl Midwood with Miss Mills review the galley proofs of last year's Scribe.

The first step in putting out a page for the yearbook is making a lay-out for a double page. This involves mathematical calculations in figuring picture proportions and copy space. Cynthia Ciak works on a lay-out with pencil and ruler in hand as Marlene Kozicki looks on.

After a page is laid out the copy is written. Then the pictures are identified. Larry Uman and Danny Harold work on copy and captions for their section.

All copy, captions, and running heads for the yearbook must be typed in order to be sent to the printer with a carbon copy for the staff. Barbara Johnson gets some of Randi Tillman's copy typed after it has been approved by adviser, Miss Boylan.

The page is almost finished but Mitch Markman and Mark Powell go over the lay-out, all copy, and any special instructions before they submit the page for final approval.

The printer sends the galley sheets to the staff for final corrections. The staff tries to keep mistakes to a minimum. Senior section editors Mary Ellen Eastwood and Winona Black carefully go over galley sheets for the Senior Section as soon as they receive them.

Members of the advertising staff of the Blue and White solicit ads for the yearbook to help defray the cost. Waiting in the typing room for adviser Miss Porter are Betsy Franseen, Karen Hopkins, Joyce Yemenijian, Deborah Chelefou, Ann Bonemery, Nancy Laino, and Estelle Grady.

CHAPIN LOOKS AT CHAPIN

Paul Chapin, a senior and member of the BLUE AND WHITE staff, looks up at the St. Gaudens' statue of his ancestor Deacon Samuel Chapin, one of the founders of Springfield, Massachusetts.

MR. GEORGE ANDREWES

The retirement of Mr. George Andrewes last year after his many years of service to Classical High School was a loss that will be deeply felt. During his ten years in the mathematics department at Classical, six years of which were spent as department chairman, he had as deep an interest in conveying his mathematical knowledge to students as he did in mathematics itself. He is a person worthy of being called a teacher and a man of which Classical can be proud.

In Memoriam

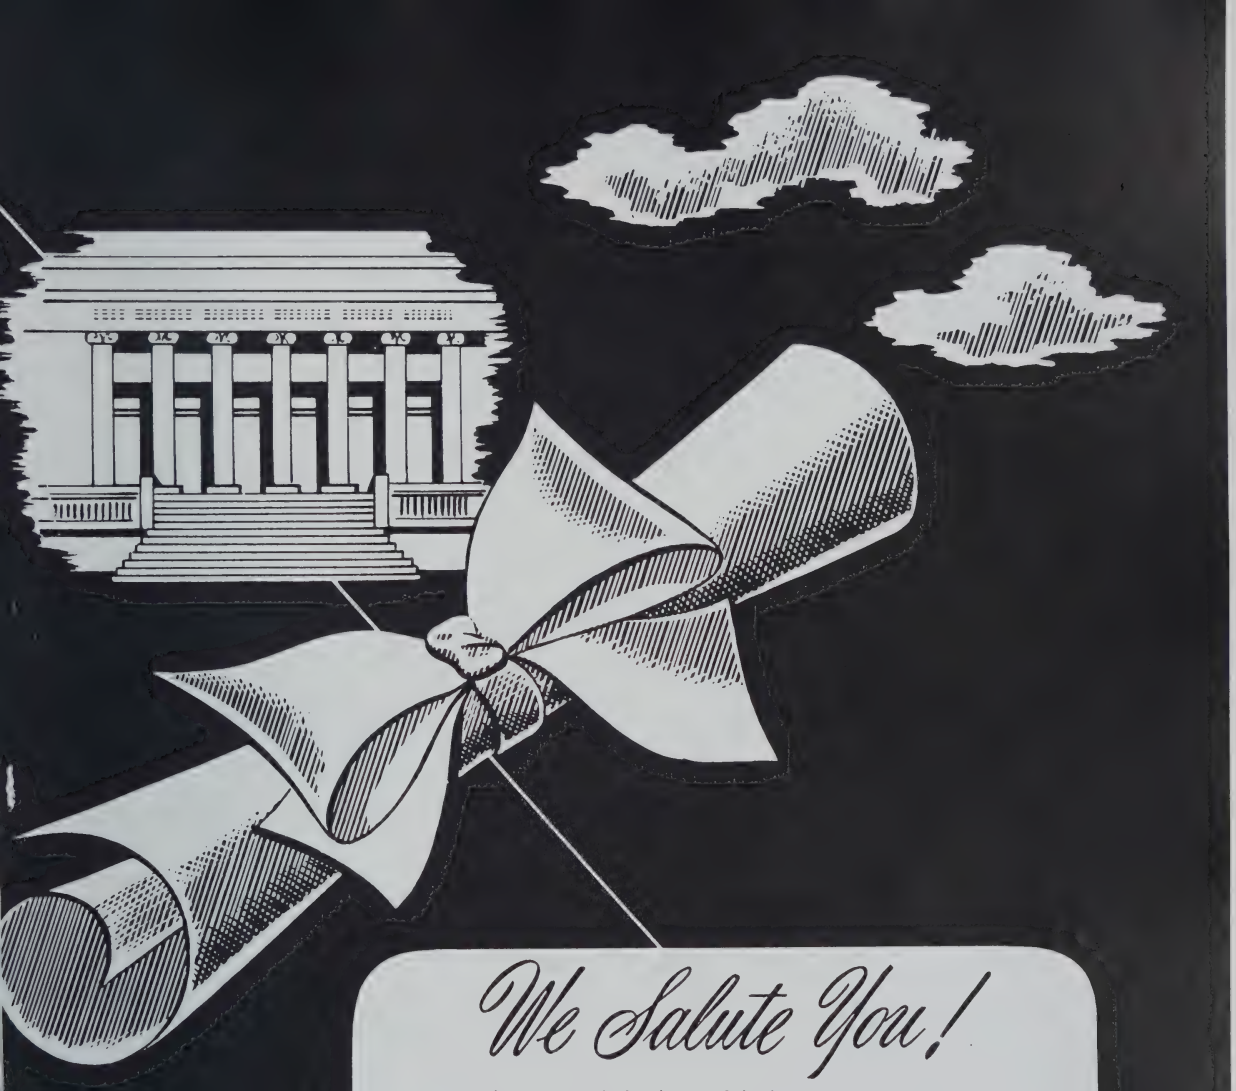

MR. MATTHEW HOPKINS

On November 17, 1967 we were saddened by the death of Mr. Matthew Hopkins, a teacher of mathematics and the faculty manager of athletics. To both of these positions he brought genuine dedication being a person who always gave unstintingly to what ever he undertook. He was a man of integrity, capability, and sincerity. All who knew him were charmed by his rich and ready humor. Although Mr. Hopkins was with us for only a short time, we are all the richer for having had the privilege of knowing a dedicated educator and a sincere friend.

To Bruce,

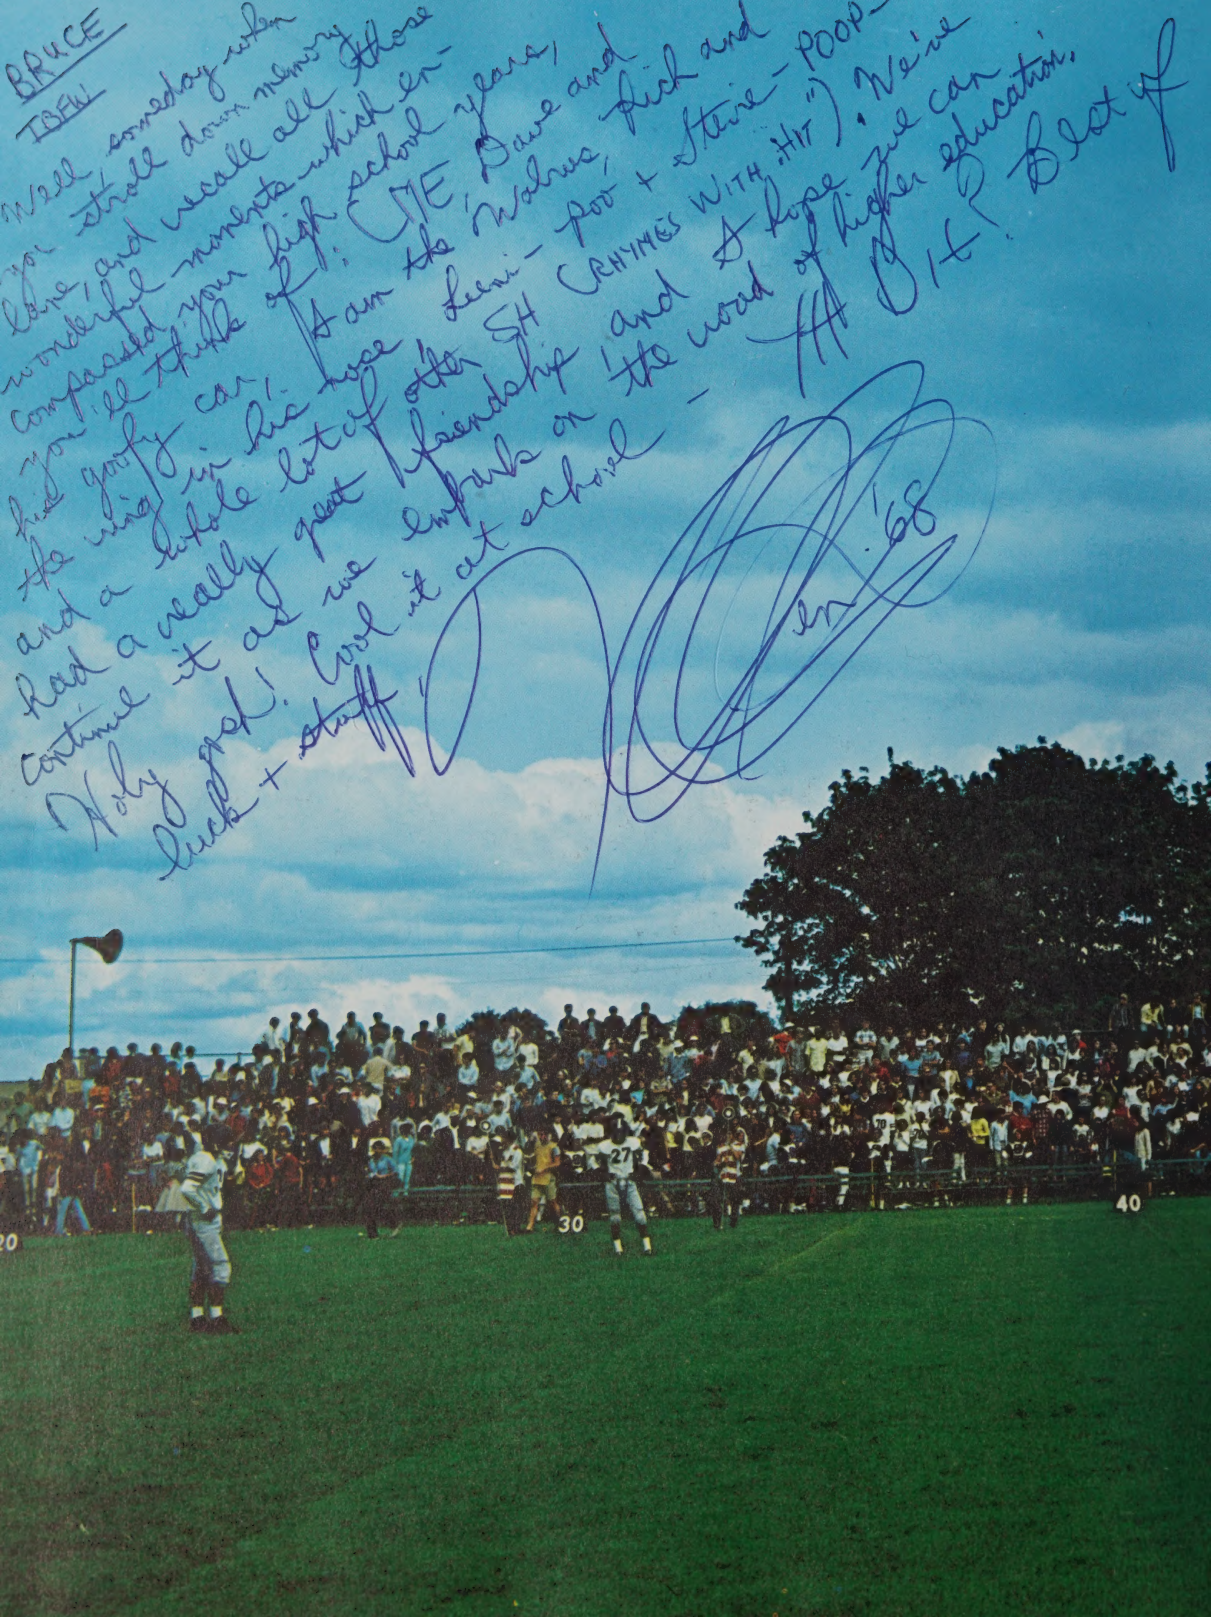

Well, I've known you since 9th grade and in that time there has been a lot of great and funny times. Remember the monkey joke in 9th grade? Thidnik in 10th grade? Thidnik in 11th grade? And of course, our fearless leader in 12th grade — Willy Young. Good luck and success in the coming years!

BRUCE
IBEW
Well someday when you stroll down memory lane, and recall all those wonderful moments which encompassed your high school years, you'll think of CUE, Dave and Bruce, Pick and Steve - POOP - and a little lot of other SH (RHYMES WITH "HIT"). We've had a really great friendship and I hope we can continue it as we embark on the word of higher education. Holy gosh! Cool it at school - All D.I.? Best of luck + stuff
